ly and reading his Testament carefully.

One October morning, he found in the gutter a little pin.

It was made of gold, with a bright shining stone in it. "Ah, ha!" cried

Vio to himself, as he secured it in his pocket, "now I can sell this for money enough to get warm clothes." But after a moment, came the thought, "It is not mine." Then he said, "I can't find the owner. You can try," said the better thought. Then Vio resolved to keep it till next Sunday, and give it to his teacher, to find an owner. But Vio felt that it would be keeping a great temptation in his way a long time, and perhaps he might yield to it. So he shouldered his bag, and ran as fast as he could to an office where a large paper was printed, and asked to see the editor or manager. The editor spoke gently to Vio. "Please, sir, I found this in the gutter, and I thought you'd tell of it in your paper, and let the owner get it."

The editor looked carefully at the pin and at Vio. "Don't you know you could sell this for more money than you ever had, my boy?" he asked.

"I thought so, sir. But please sir, it's not mine," said Vio.

"Oh, I see you expect to get a fine reward for it?"

"Oh no, sir, but I've been to the Mission school, and I can't steal and offend Jesus Christ."

"What has Jesus Christ ever done for you?"

"He loved me, sir, and died for me."

The editor brushed a tear from his eye, for he was a Christian man. "Come to me the day after tomorrow at ten," he said, and Vio went off happy, for he had done right.

Vio called at the appointed time. The pin had been advertised, but has not been called for," said the editor. But while they were speaking, the owner came in and proved his property.

"There is the honest lad who found it," said the editor.

"Ah, you look very dirty my boy. Here is a reward. You see, honesty is the best policy."

"How much did he give you?" said the editor, as the stranger left the room.

"Sixpence, sir!" replied Vio. "Ungrateful old man!" cried the editor. "I'll see if I can't do something for you myself." So he called one of his assistants, and asked if they had anything for Vio to do.

"Yes, sir, if you have a mind to make him one of the carrier-boys."

"Our Jim has broken his leg, and has gone to the hospital."

So Vio was the "carrier of the papers," and had, besides, a good suit of clothes given him by his new friend. He did not forget his dear Mission school; every Sabbath found him in his place. Vio was so obliging, honest, and industrious that he was a great favorite, and, as he grew older, had better places given him in the office, until he was able to support himself comfortably.

How often he looked back on the time when he debated what to do with the diamond pin he found, and saw how much good, even in this world, had sprung from his withstanding temptation. If he had yielded, then he would have gone, from bad to worse, to a sad end. And even if his honesty had not made him friends, and helped him to a comfortable home, he would have had the approval of a conscience at peace with itself.

"NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER."
We learn that the meeting to revive the National Intelligencer failed to achieve its purpose. The plan of placing Colonel Barrett at its head is manager, with a capital of $100,000, which was discussed at the preceding meeting, was now adopted. After some debate, it was decided not to take any action until after the commencement of Georgetown College, so that the advice of ex-President Johnson might be obtained.

A cheaper attempt at the same results is known as Claffert's method, and is based on the production of chlorine in the mass of ore by mixing with proper proportions of manganese and manganic acid. It is then kept closed in tubs for 12 hours and afterwards leached several times in the same water. This water is the lixivium in which the chemical studies perform their miracles. If the ores contain gold and copper, both are converted into chlorides and may be leached together, as they are alike soluble in water. But they require different precipitants. The chloride of silver, however, is not dissolved in water, but requires a strong solution

JOB-PRINTING.

All kinds of Job-Printing executed at the Times office. We have just received a fine assortment of the latest styles of type, and are prepared to execute at short notice any kind of printing that may be called for, in style unsurpassed by any establishment in the State, and at moderate prices.

New Advertisements.

The following New Advertisements appear in this morning's issue: Election of Professors—Davidson College—C. Dwyer, Mayor. Dry Goods—H. & E. Emanuel.

We ask attention to the Proclamation of his Honor, the Mayor, in today's issue. This, according to the prognostications of physicians, threatens to be a very sickly season, and therefore it behooves us to take all sanitary precautions.

In issuing this proclamation, his Honor, the Mayor, has done his duty, and we trust it will be heeded.

AMES' CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE. As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, Col. Ames' Circus and Menagerie will exhibit in this city on next Monday. We can assure our readers that this is a first-class show, and will do all that it advertises. The papers of Georgia and South Carolina are unanimous in awarding the highest praise to Col. Ames' Company, a fact which speaks volumes for its good quality. Taken as a whole we are convinced that Col. Ames' circus and menagerie is unsurpassed by none in the country.

THE MASONIC BAZAAR—THE GROVE. To-night—it would afford us pleasure to fore shadow this morning some of the pleasure that are in store for those who attend the Bazaar to-night, but our pen is powerless. We have been in the Grove, and seen more than two hundred of the sweetest and most skillful of Charlotte's fair daughters at work, and who can describe the result. We have not the temerity to attempt it, but will say the preparations are most ample and provided for the tastes of all. The decorations are elaborate, and when lighted up will present a fairy scene of bewitching beauty, taste and attractiveness.

One feature that makes it par excellence the place of enjoyment, the spaciousness of the walks, no crowding, but affording opportunities for late strolls where three would be detrimental. We remember one scene like this, a marquee was erected in an orange grove, where amid flowers of tropical fragrance, the flashing of a thousand colored lights, the delicious ices from St. Dominique, and music from innumerable instruments, the voluptuous daughters and pugnacious cavaliers of Casilla and Aragon whirled in the mazes of the Spanish dance, or propounded in the soft moonlight and whispered of Love.

This scene is about to be repeated here under our grand old oak, mid gay festivity, where into listening ears the oft-repeated tale may be told, and when the Soda Fountain's sparkling waters or the refreshing ice-cream, furnished by lovely waitresses, will add to the enchantment.

The most refined enjoyment and the consciousness that while participating in it, aid will be given to an object of an exalted nature, calls for the most liberal patronage.

Those who fail to attend on this occasion we truly believe will always regret it, as it is not likely such another effort will be made here in many years.

MASONIC FESTIVAL.—The General Committee will be on the grounds at the Church Grove, on Wednesday, the 7th inst., to receive any contributions or articles designed for the Fair. The Committee will be obliged if the articles be sent as early as possible during the day that they may be suitably arranged.
